General election Tuesday; politicians make final stops

With the general election just a few days away, politicians—both local and national—were intensifying their campaigning.

In addition to the obvious ads on TV and in newspapers, politicians were looking to see which towns needed more coverage, and even which homes had not yet been paid personal calls.

Olympia Snowe paid a visit to Bethel last Friday, spending an hour at the health center. While not a campaign visit as such, Rep. Snowe did have a few things to say about her opponent (her former political science professor) Kenneth Hayes and about his behavior during their televised debate two weeks ago. Rep. Snowe impressed the health center staff and the health council board members with her knowledge of legislation—both passed and proposed—affecting health care, particularly rural health care.

After taking a tour of the new facility with Director Paul Bray and physician Tom O'Meara, Rep. Snowe (along with fellow Republican Gary Bickford, running for the State Senate) sat and listened attentively while various health council and health center officials explained how the health center works.

Muriel Whitney discussed programs for the elderly; Gayle Russell discussed the new safety and rehabilitation program; June Greig and Barbara Douglass explained how the health council and health center came into being; and John Head gave the history of the present health center facility.

When they were finished, Rep. Snowe said, "You've done a great job—"

Happy Birthday, Mother!
Love,
AR. - MO. - S.C.

Bethel, with help of developer, will widen Bird Hill Rd.

With help from developer Bob Bahre, the Town of Bethel will widen the Bethel section of Bird Hill Road. The improvement will make Mr. Bahre's planned Bird Hill Estates more attractive to buyers, and will also improve travel conditions for residents already on the road.

Town Manager Rodney Lynch told last Wednesday night's Planning Board meeting, "Basically what's going on is happening up there is we'll be widening the road to town standards." Those standards dictate a 20-foot travelway, plus two-foot shoulders on both sides. The road will remain unpaved.

The agreement calls for the developer to blast the ledge and do rough grading. The town will do the final grading and install the culverts. "They were very cooperative," Mr. Lynch said of the developers. "It was fair on both sides."

Especially pleased should be residents on the road who have complained that during winter it's impossible for two cars to pass each other in opposite directions. However, although the upper, Bethel section will be widened, the lower, Greenwood section will remain narrow. Mr. Lynch explained that Greenwood officials will not receive any direct benefits from Mr. Bahre's 18-lot Bird Hill Estates subdivision and therefore are unwilling to spend money on widening the road at this time.

The developer is trying to convince Greenwood officials to provide dump trucks and allow the developer to improve the road at his own expense, Mr. Lynch said.

The Planning Board took another look at the revised plan for the subdivision, which incorporated the board's earlier objections regarding culverts and sight distances, and accepted the plan as complete. A public hearing was set for Nov. 9, after which the board has 30 days to approve or disapprove the project.

In other business, the board voted to hire a consultant to do a traffic count at the intersection of Bridge Street and Cross Street, in expectation of soon receiving plans for the Bethel Crossing shopping center, proposed for that location. The consultant would also be asked LEARNING THE NUTS AND BOLTS OF DEMOCRACY—Telstar Regional High School students Patrick Harrington, Robert Hutson and Jennifer Adams cast their ballots in last week's mock election at the school. The student voters picked George Bush and Dan Quayle as the next president and vice-president. The Republican pair beat Democrats Mike Dukakis and Lloyd Bentsen, 126-59. Incumbent U.S. Senator George Mitchell had an easy time against Republican challenger Jasper Wyman, 140-50, and Rep. Olympia Snowe had an even easier time against Democratic challenger Kenneth Hayes, 173-45. In local races, the students went with incumbent (and Telstar alumnus) Rep. Jeff Mills, but picked Gary Bickford (of Jay) to unseat State Senator Ed Erwin (of Rumford). The students approved all the bond issues and narrowly approved the constitutional amendment. The Telstar mock elections have generally been a reliable predictor of results in the real election, according to Social Studies teacher Rodney Abbott.

Rainey denied bail; ordered to undergo mental examination

The Locke Mills man accused of murdering two people in Bethel last week and seriously wounding a third in Locke Mills had admitted himself to a mental hospital in Massachusetts earlier this year, according to a motion filed by the state in Oxford County District Court.

The motion, seeking a mental examination for Gary Rainey, 51, states that he told jail authorities here he had previously attempted suicide and admitted himself to the hospital. According to the motion: "The state is not aware of the nature of the problem for which the defendant admitted himself, the length of his stay at the institution, or the nature of any treatment provided."

At a hearing last Friday, District Court Judge John Sheldon approved the state's request for a psychological examination of the accused man, and he also approved the state's request that Mr. Rainey be denied bail. He is being held at the Oxford County Jail, in South Paris.

Through his court-appointed lawyer, Robert Russell, of Bethel, Mr. Rainey joined in the motion for an examination. He had earlier told the court he did not wish to seek bail as he had nowhere to go.

Mr. Rainey is accused of beating and shooting to death his stepdaughter Kimberly Shriver, 29, and her boyfriend Christopher Greska, 31, at their home off the Middle Intervale Road.

Oil spill cleanup costs and fate of schoolhouse on Woodstock warrant

At a special town meeting tonight (Wednesday) Woodstock voters will be asked to allocate $40,000 toward the cleanup of the oil spill at the town garage and to approve plans to demolish the former Woodstock School building.

The cleanup of the recently discovered fuel oil spill is proceeding smoothly, Town Manager Vern Maxfield said, and the operation should be finished in a couple of months.

With the help of the state Department of Environmental Protection, the town set up a system of trenches around the garage and workers have been able to pump out and recover 300-400 gallons of fuel oil. "It's working beautifully," Mr. Maxfield said.

Town officials hope to keep the cost of the project to approximately $30,000, he said, but they are asking voters to approve the allocation of $40,000 from the surplus account, in case the total costs run higher.

Mr. Maxfield said the town is exploring possibilities for obtaining state or federal funds to help offset the cost of the

Coroner testifies Joan Saunders' death not suicide

ROCKLAND—[The following story is by Shane Harper, a freelance journalist in Rockland, reporting for The Citizen.]

The likelihood of Joan Saunders having committed suicide—as claimed by her former husband—was "extremely improbable," according to the state's chief medical examiner, in testimony yesterday (Tuesday) at the murder trial of Alfred Saunders, 42, of Bethel. The trial is being held in Knox County because of the extensive publicity given the case in western Maine.

Chief Medical Examiner Henry Ryan, a witness for the prosecution, testified that Mr. Saunders' second wife Joan, whose partially decomposed body was found buried in the root cellar of the couple's former home on Bird Hill Road, was shot twice with a shotgun. He pointed out that had the death been a suicide, it would be very unlikely that the person could have shot herself twice.

In fact, he said, he had never seen a suicide in which a person had been able to shoot himself twice. He noted, in passing, that there are normally 130 to 135 suicides a year in Maine.

Dr. Ryan testified that one shotgun blast hit Joan Saunders in the right side of the neck and head, with pellets entering the brain and severing a major artery to the brain. Wounds from that blast—which he estimated was fired from about six feet away—would have caused death within five minutes.

The other shotgun blast was fired directly into the front of the victim at closer range, Dr. Ryan testified, hitting her in the area of the heart.

A firearms expert from the Maine State Police crime laboratory, testifying for the prosecution, demonstrated that if he held a double-barreled shotgun pointed towards himself, the farthest the barrel would be from his body—with his finger still on the trigger—would be nine inches.

Joan Saunders' body was dug up from the concrete cellar floor in August 1987. According to Dr. Ryan's testimony, she had been lying on her left side. She was wearing a brown plaid coat, which showed damage from the shotgun blast to her chest, a maroon vest, a turtleneck sweater and jeans. Because the cellar was cool and dry, the body was quite well

Homicides in Maine may reach all-time high

The double homicide in Bethel two weeks ago brought the total number of homicides in Maine so far this year to 32. Chief of the Maine State Police, Col. Andrew Demers, suggested that if the rate of homicides in Maine this year continues at its present pace, "1988 may go into the record books as the year of the most homicides in Maine history."

In 1987 there were 30 homicides in the state. The year with the highest number of homicides was 1981, with 36, according to Department of Public Safety statistics.

Col. Demers said he is concerned about the trend this year because traditionally homicides become most frequent during the last three months of the year.

Of the state's 32 murders to date this year, 20 occurred in urban areas, while 12 occurred in rural communities. Sixty-eight percent of the victims were killed with firearms, according to state statistics.

Be careful on bond issues

Once again the state Legislature has decided to place before the voters a bewildering assortment of bond issues, most of which should have been dealt with by the Legislature. Should all six bonds on next week's ballot pass, Mainers would go an additional $100,000,000 (including interest payments) in debt. This would be in addition to the $650,000,000 in bonded debt already authorized in past elections.

Here are the Legislature's proposals:

#1—"To borrow $3,200,000 to establish a statewide 9-1-1 system." The establishment of a statewide 9-1-1 system would be a good thing, particularly for small, rural communities. But the amount to be borrowed will not be enough to bring the system into being. In fact, it will require an additional $14 million to get the system working. The Legislature should be ashamed of itself for trying to get money from the taxpayers with a decoy bond issue like this. The Legislature should tell the whole story, rather than asking for some money this year and more money down the road. The issue should be defeated.

#2—"To borrow $3,000,000 to build, repair and renovate public safety facilities." State agencies should not be forced to go to the voters to borrow money to make repairs on their facilities. The Legislature—and the various state agencies—should budget for upkeep of their facilities. New construction is a proper item for borrowing money; making repairs to facilities is not. The issue should be defeated.

#3—"To borrow $12,000,000 for cleaning up landfills and other sites that pose a public health hazard." The money would be used as follows: $5 million to find and clean up threats to public health from uncontrolled hazardous substance sites or hazardous waste discharges; $5 million to close solid waste landfills; $2 million for the removal of leaking residential underground oil storage tanks; $1 million for the removal of leaking commercial underground storage tanks. These are extraordinary one-time expenses that one can justify going into debt for. The issue should be approved.

#4—"To borrow $12,000,000 for the construction of sewerage facilities." Since the federal government refuses to provide money for sewerage plants, and since construction of a sewerage plant is too expensive for a town to do on its own, it's up to the state to take up the slack. The issue should be approved.

#5—"To borrow $5,000,000 to set up an adaptive equipment loan program." The main purpose of this issue is to make money available for people with handicaps to borrow in order to purchase equipment so they can overcome their handicaps. This is all well and good. What is not good is that the bill would establish a whole new bureaucracy to administer the program. The new board would not only have the power to make loans from the fund but would also have the power to enter into contracts and agreements concerning disabled persons. There are already plenty of professionals dealing with the needs of disabled persons. A loan program could be devised, under the Finance Authority of Maine, to make money available through hospitals and clinics for adaptive equipment. While the goal of this legislation is commendable, the setting up of another bureaucracy is not. The issue should be defeated.

#6—"To borrow $36,800,000 for construction and other capital improvements on the campuses of the University of Maine system." This is the classic reason for going into debt: that is, to build or buy something that will serve many generations. This legislation would do just that. Among other projects the money would pay for are these at UMF: more classrooms, an improved computer center, expanded health and physical education facilities. These purchases will be more than paid for by a better-educated populace. The issue should be approved.

Also on the bond ballot, although it won't cost a cent, is a proposed constitutional amendment. If passed, it would require that the Constitution of Maine be amended to remove gender-biased language in order to make it clear that the Constitution applies to all individuals, not just men. Back when only men could vote it probably made sense to just refer to men in the Constitution. Now that women also have won the right to vote, the Constitution should, in fairness, apply to both sexes and be gender-neutral. The issue should be approved. bfw

To the Editor:

Being a parent is the hardest job in the world. I know, because my husband and I have raised three daughters. I also believe it is the most important job in the world, and one for which there is no formal training. For better or for worse, we tend to parent as we were parented. But what worked for our parents doesn't always work in this age of mass media and fast living that exposes children early on to (often) questionable values, activities, influences, and temptations.

Concerned parents who are seeking help in meeting the challenge of parenting in this complex world are finding that there are some sound and sensible programs to aid them. One such program is S.T.E.P., Systematic Training for Effective Parenting, which is offered in this community under the auspices of SAD #44 Adult Education. S.T.E.P. is based on principles of mutual respect, encouragement, love, understanding, and cooperation. S.T.E.P. teaches a method of discipline based on natural and logical consequences. Participants are helped to realize the goal of raising responsible, confident children who will grow into responsible men and women, capable of living meaningful, happy adult lives.

In view of all this, I am dismayed that

Chris Larson, in her letter of Oct. 26, has implied that those mothers currently participating in this parenting program are neglecting their children by leaving them for two hours a week while they meet upstairs in a S.T.E.P. group. (In fact, at least half a dozen infants are usually in their mothers' arms.) As the facilitator of this group, I commend these mothers (and some fathers, as well), and all those before them who have participated in other parent groups. Their love, dedication, and commitment will help to prevent major problems from developing when their children are older. Parents of teens, participating in S.T.E.P./Teen, also are improving parent-teen relationships and preventing problems from developing. I commend as well Cathy Newell, Adult Education director, for having the vision to include S.T.E.P. and S.T.E.P./Teen in the adult course offerings.

If Ms. Larson, or anyone else in the community, is interested in learning more of what S.T.E.P. and S.T.E.P./Teen are all about, she or he may get in touch with me through the Adult Education office.

A note from the publisher

The general election is less than a week away, and it's distressing to read that the messages of the candidates are not meeting with much enthusiasm from the populace. Granted, neither candidate is very electrifying, but their basic views seem quite clear.

On the one hand you have George Bush, who views the United States as the policeman of the world. On the other hand you have Michael Dukakis who views the United States as just another nation among nations.

On domestic issues, their views are likewise clear, and clearly opposite. On the one hand there is Bush wanting to force America to be a country where street crime is dealt with harshly, where there are more prisons, more police, more executions, and handguns easily available to anyone—with no waiting period.

On the other hand you have Dukakis, who views crime in the context of the desperation felt by an underclass riddled with drugs and disease, sealed in ghettos—or worse, out on the streets with no permanent shelter at all.

George Bush talks about keeping America #1. He never says #1 in what. Does America have the highest per capita income? No. Does America have the lowest infant mortality rate? Far from it. Do Americans have the longest lifespan? No. Does America have the largest or strongest military force? No. Do Americans do better academically than people in other nations? We're down near the bottom. Do Americans perform athletically better than athletes from other nations? Not judging by Olympic medals. Does America manage its environmental problems better than other nations? Just think back to Love Canal, three Mile Island, acid rain, closed beaches. Does America give the most foreign aid of any nation? No.

On the other hand, does America have the most reported AIDS cases? Yes.

Letters

To the Editor:

In reference to your column in the Oct. 26 issue of The Citizen, Seventh-Day Adventists and proud to be one. We as a whole recognize that we have faults as individuals. But as a church body, in every church in these United States, we are true red-blooded Americans and consider it a high privilege and honor to salute and Pledge Allegiance to our American flag.

At a very young age, from toddlers, teens to adults, all learn in their church-oriented activities—school, Pathfinder Clubs (equal to Boy and Girl Scouts), etc.—as a requirement to recite this memorial of a free country.

I acknowledge because of this freedom, especially election years, many twisted ideas and personal thoughts get published or spoken over national radio and TV, a large percentage of which don't make for a better America.

If we all worked together as a team to produce our forefather's goals, it could be "one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Goldie Mason
West Paris

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to your [publisher's] column in the Bethel Citizen of Oct. 26, in which you stated that some Seventh-Day Adventists refuse to recite the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag.

If you would visit our church in South Woodstock, you would find a flag on the platform behind the pulpit, prominently displayed. Also, in our Christian church school, we have the American flag, and the pledge is repeated each morning in the opening exercises, as well as Bible reading and prayer.

The Seventh-Day Adventist Church also has a worldwide youth program, called the "Pathfinders," which is comparable to the Scouting program, and the first thing done in their weekly meetings and their other gatherings is the Pledge of Allegiance to the American flag.

Seventh-Day Adventists believe in upholding our government, unless it would go against the authority of God. In 1 Timothy 2:1-3, we are told to pray for our leaders. And you would hear this in the main prayer from our pulpit on most any Sabbath morning. Acts 5:29, "We ought to obey God rather than men." Also, in Romans 13:1-7, that God is interested in our government. "Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ordained of God."

I am hoping that this will clear up any misunderstanding which may have been conveyed to the readers [by the publisher's column] regarding our stand on the American flag, and also a question of our patriotism.

We would invite you and any readers to join us in our worship on Saturday mornings at 11 a.m.

Ann D. Dunham
South Woodstock

Editor's reply: The religious denomination whose members refused to recite the Pledge of Allegiance was, of course, the Jehovah's Witnesses—not the Seventh-Day Adventists. The Citizen apologizes for the error in the column. As a postscript, it is important to note that the Supreme Court upheld the Constitutional right of the dissenters to not have to recite the pledge if they didn't want to. The important question was not of patriotism but of Constitutional guarantees of freedom of belief and freedom of expression.

Does America import more drugs than any other country? Yes. Do Americans know less about world geography than people in other developed nations? Yes. Does America have more homeless than other developed nations? Yes.

If this is what Mr. Bush calls being #1, what's #2?

This is not to say that America is not a great country. It is. It is still what it always has been: a land of opportunity—a land of diverse cultures where a person can generally go as far as his ability will carry him, without the fetters of traditional ways of thought.

Mr. Bush talks a lot about national security, and that he will keep America strong. But he equates strength with guns.

The fact is, America is weak in many ways, despite a great arsenal of guns. It is weak because family and community ties have weakened and no other network of ties has been developed to take up the slack.

It is weak because children are not encouraged to stay in school, and because those who do stay in school often graduate without the basic skills and knowledge they need to function in society.

It is weak because drugs are flooding across our borders.

It is weak because the economy is being kept vibrant only by the government constantly borrowing from abroad. It is weak because there is no longer a generally accepted vision of what the country is and can be. The general attitude is get what you can when you can. While Bush campaigns on the issue of street crime, the criminals on Wall Street and in the administration are more aggrandizing than ever.

America is a land of opportunity, but that opportunity has generally been hemmed in by law. When the government itself disregards the law—as in the Iran-Contra scandal—it is difficult for it to convince ordinary citizens to obey the law.

It is certainly true that Mr. Bush has been in government circles longer than Mr. Dukakis. And possibly that explains why his ideas about America and America's place in the world, are still steeped in the Cold War. (And Mr. Quayle is worse, regarding Glasnost as no different from Stalinism.) The world has changed since President Nixon reached out to China, and since General Secretary Gorbachev reached out to the U.S.

It has been rightly said that, in this nuclear age, the only defense against destruction is peace.

Preaching a world view in which America is #1 and every other country secondary is not a prescription for world peace.

This is an era of global cooperation on global problems. Dukakis seems to understand that. Bush does not.

This campaign season seems to have less campaigning in it than in recent election years. Generally The Citizen office becomes a regular whistle stop for candidates. This year, only Don Twitchell, Gary Bickford, and Ginger Kelly have dropped in to chat about the issues and about their campaigns. Olympia Snowe did want to come by the office, but I told her aides I preferred to see her in action when she toured the health center, which is what happened, and which was probably more enlightening than having a brief interview with her.

Of the candidates I've spoken with, Mr. Twitchell—whom I think does an excellent job in the State Senate—said he would oppose any move by the MMA to water down the state's Right to Know Law. I would hope that other legislative candidates would make this pledge if they expect to garner votes on election day.

Mr. Bickford is the only candidate I've spoken with who has been forthright in his opposition to CMP's proposed Hydro-Quebec power import plan. Incumbent Senator Ed Erwin has hemmed and hawed on the issue and declined to take any sort of leadership role at all. It seems clear that his non-position on the issue will cost him votes in Andover and Dixfield. On the other hand, Mr. Bickford's law-and-order stand during the strike at IP will probably cost him most of the union vote in Jay.

The balance of power in that race is likely to be swung by the voters in Rumford and Bethel. If the results of Telstar mod election are any indication—and usually they are—Bethel will go for Bickford.

The Citizen will carry full election results from our area towns next week. The office will remain open Tuesday night until all town election officials have called in their results. A reminder to election officials in the towns we cover, please call in your results as early as you can. Our number is 824-2444.

To the Editor:

As a parent of two children in SAD #44, I was very disappointed with the decision that was made regarding the half-day on Wednesdays.

I realize that teachers do put in long hours and frequently take work home to do at night or on weekends. What I would like to know is how many of them have to work on holidays, such as Thanksgiving Day, Christmas Day, or even New Years Eve?

Now I am sure that the reaction to that statement will be "that everyone chooses what they want to do as a profession." I do agree with that and my point is that the teachers of today's society chose to teach the children and I do not believe that they can do so effectively having every Wednesday afternoon off. I do not want to abolish the whole idea, because I think that the children of a future generation will benefit from a program such as this. But what exactly are our children that are missing one afternoon a week, with a day's work crammed into a half-day, getting from the program.

Voters of District 15 have the opportunity to send a hard worker back to the Maine Senate. With 10 years' experience as a leader in the Maine House of Representatives and six years in the Senate, Don Twitchell has the experience and energy to continue his leadership role in state government. On issues concerning property tax reform, agriculture, wildlife and outdoor recreation, Don is an expert and faces the challenge of his job with enthusiasm. Democrats, Republicans and Independents alike all benefit from the great job Don has been doing for District 15 and the State of Maine. Let's keep him working for us by re-electing him to the Maine Senate next Tuesday on Election Day. Thank you for your support.

I feel I must respond to Chris Larson's letter. Yes, I leave my older child with "strangers" (Nancy Brooks and an assistant) while my infant and I take a course on parenting.

None of the parents work outside the home and none are on the AFDC Program. We are taking this course to better understand and prepare our children to be responsible adults. We appreciate our children as individuals and not "just another mouth to feed."

We are learning to listen to what our children are saying, and not just hear their chatter. We are learning how to encourage, stimulate, discipline and challenge our children to be the best they can be.

I'd like to thank Lorrie Hoeh, Nancy Brooks and Cathy Newell for this course. It should be taken by all parents.

To the Editor:

On Tuesday, Oct. 8, there will be people at the Bethel polling place collecting signatures to get a referendum on next year's ballot on the testing of cruise missiles in Maine. By signing this petition citizens are not saying they oppose or support the planned tests. They are saying that Maine citizens have a right to vote on this important issue. That is what democracy is all about.

If enough people sign the petition, the issue goes first to the State Legislature. Our legislators may then approve the measure or send it on to the voters as a referendum that would appear on the November 1989 ballot.

There are many good reasons to be concerned about these tests. Pilots, environmentalists, sportsmen, and people living near the proposed flight path have all voiced safety concerns. People concerned about arms control do not want this part of the arms race brought to Maine's doorstep. They believe the U.S. can find better uses for the $6 billion that the missile program will cost taxpayers.

The sea-launched cruise missile (Tomahawk) is 18-feet in length and weighs 2,800 pounds. Current U.S. plans call for the deployment of 4,000 Tomahawks with approximately 20 percent carrying nuclear weapons. By placing such missiles off the shores of Europe, the sea-launched cruise will undermine the INF treaty. The difficulty to verify the cruise missiles is currently obstructing the completion of a Strategic Arms Reduction treaty. Their deadly accuracy and capability to fly below radar tightens the nuclear tripwire even further.

Paul Nitze, a key Reagan arms control advisor, has urged the complete elimination of all nuclear armed cruise missiles because massive deployments of the weapon would benefit the Soviets more than the U.S.

In our state, we treasure our rich democratic heritage and value deeply our rights to have input on decisions that affect our lives. Please help us maintain that heritage by signing a petition on election day.

To the Editor:

I went for a walk today up on Bird Hill and its fringes, collecting colors and images on this road where I live:

A yellow, leafy ravine. Sudden green springs, gurgling through mosses and over the hard surfaces of coarse-grained granite. Dark silent clumps of pointy evergreens. Those tumbled layers of loggers, brownish and gray. A dog who can't hike without straining along the inevitable bramble stuck to his behind. The eight blue successive folds of mountains between our hill and snowy, distant Mt. Washington. And overhead the cloud, a white blimp, apparently stationary in the blue vault of this great Cathedral, earth.

This is a road where neighbor children play and dogs bark, where kittens hide in holes under houses. Local history tells that children have lived here since the old Tibbetts Mill moved the first four houses south from Walker's Mills to Bird Hill Road, in the early part of the century. The old three-room schoolhouse at the base of the road (now the town office) can testify to the fun, innocence, arguments and education of generations of Bird Hill children. It's a history heavy with the goodness of countless small incidents, not to be forgotten.

Hard to think this animate hill the site of a shooting just days ago. That I sat in the living room quietly watching "Fiddler on the Roof," my teenage son up in his room at the computer, while two doors down my ex-neighbor was shooting his stepson.

Men and women can and may give vent to devils, even on this beautiful hill. And in this Cathedral, none-the-less, holy, none-the-less blue.

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to the letter from Chris Larson in last week's paper. I agree with Chris that children need to be raised and nurtured by their mothers, not day care workers. That's why I am home with my three girls. Those who have seen me taking pictures for The Citizen know it is a familiar sight for me to be out, baby in backpack and 4-year-old along. I would not work at all if it meant leaving my children in day care.

I am taking this parenting course, because my family is very important to me and I want to do the best job I can raising my children to be responsible and caring people.

I think Chris made a mistake by using our parenting class as an example of what is wrong with our family structure. She should have used it instead as an example of caring, dedicated mothers who are making an honest effort to be the best parents they can be.

To the Editor:

Nov. 8 will be a most important day for the county, state and nation. History will be made and the destiny of this nation will be at stake. Its future literally rests in the hands of its citizens. Therefore every citizen of voting age should register and vote.

How tragic that in almost every election the majority of citizens who can vote never do. Thus the principle of democracy breaks down and the majority are controlled by the minority. Eventually the American way of life and freedom will come to an end. So if you want to keep America free, get out and vote on election day.

As you vote, I would strongly urge you to consider the qualifications of a very fine lady, Mrs. Ann Marshall, from Mexico, who is running for our State Legislature for District #62, which contains the towns of Hartford, Mexico, Roxbury, Sumner, Woodstock, Milton Township and part of Rumford.

Mrs. Marshall is a long-time resident of Mexico. She along with her husband, Roland Marshall, have been co-owners and managers of two businesses for 20 years. In view of this, I'm sure Mrs. Marshall will have foremost in her mind the small businessmen and women of this district and will support legislation that will benefit them.

Mrs. Marshall is the mother of seven children, which, in itself, is one of God's highest callings. She has told me personally she believes strongly in the sanctity of human life and would therefore be opposed to any legislation that would be for the ending of life of an unborn child. She knows first-hand how precious each one is. The issue, I feel, is not a matter of a woman controlling her own body at the time of an unwanted pregnancy—this should have been the consideration before the fact. Now her responsibility is the body and life she carries within her body.

Ann Marshall is a former member of the town budget and school budget committees. This certainly has given her an insight into the importance of keeping the taxes of each citizen as low as they can, possibly be kept and yet at the same time to see that children have the highest opportunity for a good education. There is a balance to be maintained here, and I feel confident her past experience on these committees increased her knowledge as to how this is done.

She is also interested in athletics and was for 10 years an officer and fundraiser with the Mexico Athletic Boosters.

Mrs. Marshall is a member of the VFW Auxiliary, which assures me that she has a strong fervent spirit of patriotism which is embodied in the organization to which she belongs.

The working man and woman would have her sympathy and concern in as much as she is a former member of Local 900 UPEU; and being a member of St. Therese's Church, I feel certain she would hold strongly to the Judeo-Christian principles which have made this country the best in the world.

Here is a person I feel is, therefore, fully qualified to represent her district in the next legislature and most worthy of your serious consideration as you vote on Nov. 8.

To the Editor:

It is disturbing to know that only 14 percent of Maine's people possess college educations. This statistic appears alarming, especially when one realizes that education has never been more important if Maine people are to continue to compete in an increasingly competitive world.

Access to higher education opportunities is essential if citizens of this state are to have opportunities available to those in other states with strong public university system. One of the ways of ensuring access is to be certain that Maine continues to support its institutions of higher education (vocational schools and university system) to the fullest extent possible.

In 1988 voters have an opportunity to support the University of Maine System by approving some urgently needed construction at all seven campuses proposed in Bond Issue Question Six. Never has it been more vital to support the University if we are to maintain the quality that we expect. I ask all Maine voters to join me in voting "yes" on #6.

We have a ski condo at Sunday River, and we love our state, your town and your people. In the past, we have only been able to come up when we had a free week, since the trip was too long for just a weekend of skiing.

Now that Col. Dyke Field has been paved, we will be able to fly up for weekends. I know a lot of people who either own or rent private planes and ski. I think the paved runway is going to mean much more business coming your way.

I noted in your Oct. 12 issue an [editorial] comment about government "largesse" of more than a million dollars to improve the runway. I would respectfully point out to you that that was no "largesse." The money comes from the Aviation Trust Fund. The Fund gets its money from a special tax on aviation fuel, which is paid for by all of us general aviation pilots and aircraft owners who will be using the field.

Once again, my family has enjoyed your fine hospitality, and we now can look forward to many more visits, thanks to our ability to land on the new runway.

To the Editor:

As a mother in the parenting class to which Chris Larson referred in her letter of last week, I feel I must respond.

Having met for four weeks now and shared with each other our struggles and joys as parents, I know each person in this class to be a loving, nurturing parent who cares enough about their children to learn the skills that will help them in this most important task.

What is wrong with our society, in my opinion, is that accepted parenting practices, such as yelling and spanking, do not treat our children with the love and respect they deserve as people. When children do not feel love and respect, they cannot treat others in this way.

For some reason, people are supposed to know how to parent automatically, and taking a class is criticized or seen as proof of inadequate parenting. Can you imagine being expected to do any other job without training or education?

Those of us who are parents know it is the hardest thing we have ever done. The parents in this class are learning ways to raise their children with love and respect.

I am sorry that many of the babies were crying that morning. As mothers, none of us were unaware of that, but trusted the care provided for them. The STEP program (Systematic Training for Effective Parenting) is an excellent one and Lorrie Hoeh is a skilled and knowledgeable instructor. I hope the Adult Ed program will continue to offer this class and I urge any parent to take it.

To the Editor:

As a friend of the Marshall family, of Mexico, I feel that the voters of Legislative District #62 are fortunate in having a candidate for a seat in the State Legislature with the qualities and experience of Ann Marshall.

A mother of seven, businesswoman, civic leader, athletic booster and a former town budget committee member, as well as a former school committee member, she has the capability and strength of mind to deal with the challenges encountered in this most important office.

Ann Marshall will represent District #62 with dignity and honor, and we will be proud of her accomplishments.

Notes from the Woodstock Historical Society

Following is an interesting comment: "In Maine, things change slowly. Old customs, old speechways, old standards and old manners remain current and significant long after they have been abandoned by the rest of the world, and so the past is not something to be reconstructed with difficulty, but something that is lived every day." How tragic that in almost every election the majority of citizens who can vote never do. Thus, the principle of democracy breaks down and the majority are controlled by the minority. Eventually the American way of life and freedom will come to an end and you will want to keep America free, get out and vote on election day.

As you vote, I would strongly urge you to consider the qualifications of a very fine lady, Mrs. Ann Marshall, from Mexico, who is running for our State Legislature for District #32, which contains the towns of Hartford, Mexico, Roxbury, Summer, Woodstock, Milton Township and part of Rumford.

Mrs. Marshall is a long-time resident of Mexico. She also, with her husband, Roland Marshall, have been co-owners and managers of two businesses for 20 years. In view of this, I'm sure Mrs. Marshall will have foreseen in her mind the small businessmen and women of this district and will support legislation that will benefit them.

Mrs. Marshall is the mother of seven children, which, in itself, is one of God's richest callings. She has told me personally she believes strongly in the sanctity of human life and would therefore be opposed to any legislation that would be for the ending of the life of an unborn child. She knows first-hand how precious each one is. The issue, I feel, is not a matter of a woman controlling her own body at the time of an unwanted pregnancy—this should have been the consideration before the fact. Now her responsibility is the body and life she carries within her body.

Ann Marshall is a former member of the town budget and school budget committees. This certainly has given her an insight into the importance of keeping the taxes of each citizen as low as they can, possibly be kept and yet at the same time to see that children have the highest opportunity for a good education. There is a balance to be maintained here, and I feel confident her past experience on these committees increased her knowledge as to how this is done.

She is also interested in athletics and was for 10 years an officer and fundraiser with the Mexico Athletic Boosters.

Mrs. Marshall is a member of the VFW Auxiliary, which assures me that she has a strong fervent spirit of patriotism which is embodied in the organization to which she belongs.

The working man and woman would have her sympathy and concern in as much as she is a former member of Local 900 UPIU; and being a member of St. Therese's Church, I feel certain she would hold strongly to the Judeo-Christian principles which have made this country the best in the world.

Here is a person I feel is, therefore, qualified to represent her district in the next legislature and most worthy of your serious consideration as you vote on Nov. 8.

To the Editor:

It is disturbing to know that only 14 percent of Maine's people possess college educations. This statistic appears alarming, especially when one realizes that education has never been more important in Maine people are to continue to compete in an increasingly competitive world.

Access to higher education opportunities is essential if citizens of this state are to have opportunities available to those in other states with strong public university system. One of the ways of ensuring access is to be certain that Maine continues to support its institutions of higher education (vocational schools and university system) to the fullest extent possible.

In 1988 voters have an opportunity to support the University of Maine System by approving some urgently needed construction at all seven campuses proposed in Bond Issue Question Six. Never has it been more vital to support the University if we are to maintain the quality that we expect. I ask all Maine voters to join me in voting "yes" on #6.

Some of the issues raised by the health center personnel during their presentations included the very senior citizens become impoverished if a spouse goes into a nursing home. Also, the slowness of Medicare and Medicaid payments, and the percentage of bills they will cover; also the drying up of federal funding for rural health care.

Rep. Snow, for her part, told her hosts about her unsuccessful fight in Congress to get federal funding for child care. "I'm disappointed Congress didn't take action on child care last session," she said. The opposition to the measure came, she said, from legislators who were opposed to licensing and federal standards for day care centers. She said most states already have their own standards and issue licenses for centers and it would not be a great change to have uniform, federal standards. "I think the federal government has the obligation of setting standards."

Throughout the showing of the video, Mr. Saunders watched the film intently but displayed no emotion. Earlier, State Police Detective Hubert Carter (now retired) testified that he first accepted Mr. Saunders' story that his wife Joan had simply taken off in 1981. But then, upon further questioning, he began to see inconsistencies in the story. Once, he said, Mr. Saunders said she had left on a Thursday. Another time he said she had left on a Sunday.

Finally, because of additional leads that he did not disclose, the investigation took him back to the house once shared by Al and Joan Saunders and he received permission from the present owners to search for a body. When they found the body, he said, there was no doubt in his mind that it was a homicide.

Mr. Saunders said previously that his wife committed suicide and that he gave out the story that she had run off in order to spare family members pain and shame.

His court-appointed defense attorney, E. James Burke, of Lewiston, indicated he will use the suicide theory and not try to explain about the story Saunders told Det. Carter. "The case is not whether he made up a story of her leaving," Mr. Burke said. The case is whether the state can prove that Mr. Saunders intentionally caused the death of his former wife, he told the jury.

The people that will have to decide the matter are 12 men. They, along with three alternates, form the jury that was selected from an original group of 81 people who showed up for jury duty at the start of the trial Monday. Defense attorney Burke offered a "no comment" when asked by The Citizen whether he had wanted an all-male jury.

Some of the questions that resulted in eliminating prospective jurors included: how they felt about police, and about police testimony; how they felt about mental health problems; whether they knew anyone who had ever committed suicide; how they felt about alcoholism; whether they had ever been the victim of a crime; whether they had ever experienced violent arguments with a spouse; and whether they had any knowledge or remembered reading anything about the alleged murder.

The trial is expected to continue into next week as the prosecution has said it intends to call two dozen witnesses. The judge in the trial is Thomas Delahanty.

The town's building committee has recommended that the former school building be torn down in order to free the site for use by the highway department. Voters will also be asked to approve modifications to the town's subdivision and shoreline zoning regulations, and to set hours of use for town-owned recreation areas.

WALT MICHAEL & COMPANY performed at Telstar Regional High School last Friday night in a concert sponsored by the Mahosuc Arts Council, with a grant from the Maine Arts Commission through LPL plus APL. In addition to the concert, the group gave workshops to students in district schools on Thursday and Friday. The musicians explained their instruments and talked about their music. The musicians traced their instruments, and their music, back to European and African roots. In fact, the hammered dulcimer that Walt Michael plays originated in Egypt, 3,000 years ago.

Northwest Bethel

By CLARICE GIBSON

The weather the weekend of Oct. 21 was terrible, to say the least. The evening of Oct. 21 wasn't too bad as when we went to get into the car to go to Ira Gibson and Kristen Greene's pre-nuptial supper at Goldstreet in South Paris the sky was so clear that the almost-full moon and stars shone so that one didn't need a light. Saturday, however, was an altogether different kind of day. Frank and I went up to Berlin, N.H., Saturday morning and Frank called whatever was falling "slush". Someone who went later in the day said Berlin, N.H. had quite a bit of snow.

Friday Frank's sister and husband, Roberta and "Eddie" Pever came as they were going to the wedding Saturday. They spent the night at her school friend's, Barbara Stearns Inman, and Howard Inman, in Albany. Our son, Wilfred, arrived with our granddaughter, Theresa, before dinner Saturday. Another son, James, drove from Freeport to Kittery to pick up Theresa. Kim, Wilfred's wife, arrived about 3 p.m. Wilfred and Ira left early. The rest of us, Frank Jr., "Frankie", Theresa, Kim and I left about 5 as we were to be at the church in South Paris before 6.

The bride had a beautiful traditional wedding dress and was given away by her father, Sheldon Greene, of South Paris. Tamu Huntley was maid-of-honor for her cousin, Kristen Greene, and Wilfred Gibson was best man for her brother, Kim Gibson took the wedding pictures. The reception was then held in South Paris Legion Hall.

The bride's relatives helped with the serving of the food and "Bobby" Pever helped serve the cake made by Kristen Gibson's soon-to-be, Rachel Kuwaga, of North Norway. The bride's grandfather and two grandmothers were both there, as well as numerous relatives from New Hampshire, which with such a rainy day was not enjoyable for traveling. The only ones from our road were Mr. and Mrs. Stan Brown. Stan was able to help Ira with his house after Ira fell off his roof and broke his arm last spring. The couple came home the first night because of the weather and left Sunday for a short wedding trip to Sturbridge Village, Mass.

Nathan Bean, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bean, played in Telstar's first championship soccer playoff game, Monday, Oct. 24.

Mary Beth, Amy Hannon and Shilo Hutchins played in the girls' first quarterfinal playoff at Freeport, Oct. 25.

Chris Laban, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Laban, came home Friday to Sunday from his studies at University of Maine, Orono, and Matthew Laban came Friday to Monday from his studies at University of New Hampshire, Durham.

John, Sue, Matthew and Cline Laban all played golf Sunday at Bethel Inn. Paul and Edie Greenberg, of Dracut, Mass., came for the weekend of Oct. 14.

Evelyn hadn't seen for 35 years, so it was a great reunion. Friend Ellen Tuck, in Toronto, is well and active at 86. Returning to Maine, in parts of upstate New York there was six to ten inches of snow.

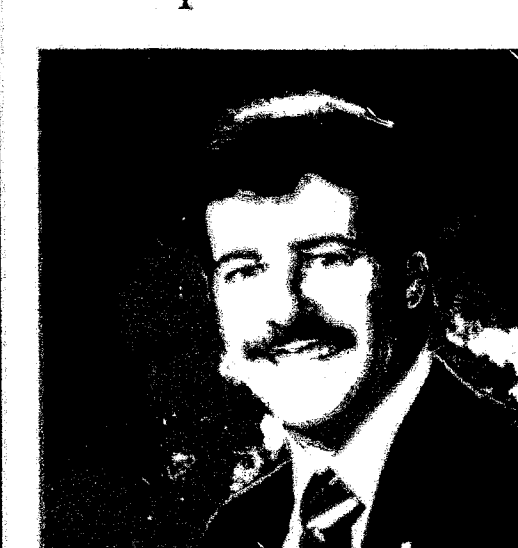

The inevitable happened at the beginning of our road when workers going to GAMM II were struck and hurt after stopping to come into our road. A big tractor hit the small car spinning it into a Bronco. Haven't heard how the people are but hope they come out without too many complications.

Much for Little
How little it costs if we give a thought
To make some heart happy each day
Just one kind word or a tender smile
As we go on our daily way
Perhaps a look will suffice to clear
That cloud from a neighbor's face
And the cross of a hand in sympathy
A crowd of tears office
It costs so little I wonder why

North Paris

By DORIS C. LAWRENCE

Finally we have had a few drops of sunshine.

My neighbor, Joan Poland, who was in a bad automobile accident Oct. 8, has been removed out of the intensive care unit at Central Maine Medical Center in Lewiston. Nov. 2 there will be a benefit supper for Joan at the West Paris Grange Hall, 6-7:30 p.m. Beans, salads, casseroles, rolls and homemade pies. Hope to see a good crowd.

Mrs. Florence Ilsley, 101, was taken by Tri-Town Rescue to Stephens Memorial Hospital, Norway, with infection in her leg.

The supper at Tri-Town Rescue Barn at Trap Corner was well attended. It was delicious.

Joe Vatcher and Madge MacCush have been to Nova Scotia for several days. Davis Lawrence fed the cat and dogs.

By ALICE KIMBALL

Mrs. Kathy Roberts, of Pennsylvania, was a recent visitor of Mrs. Evelyn Kimball.

Our sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Preble and family, of Newburyport, Mass., on the sudden death of their older son at age 28, of a heart attack. The Prebles have a summer cottage nearby.

Last Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Barker, of South Paris, were callers of the Jimmy Kimballs. Saturday afternoon callers were Mrs. Dottie Franklin and Mrs. Louise Franklin.

Sunday Mrs. Ronna Moraug, of Wayne, and Mrs. Rita Burgess, of Dresden, nieces of Christine, visited her.

Jack and Eleanor Parsons drove me to Rumford Thursday and Friday had their own appointment in Lewiston.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bancroft were at Stephens Memorial Hospital Friday where Bill had some minor knee surgery.

Christine Kimball visited Mrs. Avis Doon and entertained Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fox, of Lovell. Friday she took Jimmy to Norway for his check-up.

All mankind is divided into three classes: those who are immovable; those who are movable; and those who move.

B. Franklin.

Play about teaching

to be staged Nov. 16

The highly acclaimed one-man play, "I Am a Teacher," will be presented at Telstar Regional High School auditorium Wednesday, Nov. 16, at 7 p.m.

The author/actor, David Marquis, will perform the play for the SAD #44 community to commemorate American Education Week.

The play, which is based on the author's personal experience, takes the audience through a typical day in the life of a teacher, dealing with everything from hall duty to grading papers, from honor students to juvenile delinquents, from laughter to tears.

The author says, "Society has saddled the schools with a variety of social

Agnes Gray School

By MARTA CLEMENTS

Agnes Gray School T-shirts and sweat-shirts are available again this year. We are taking orders this week and order forms have been sent home. We are planning to have delivery on Nov. 28, which is parent-teacher conference day. If you haven't received an order form please call the school and we will see that you get one.

Our two art teachers are working together. Mrs. Mehner teaches K-3 and Mrs. Merrill teaches Grades 4-6. Both teachers are naming artists of the week. These particular artists will have their work displayed in the elementary art show in the spring. Artists of the week for Oct. 10-14 was Kenny Hill, Grade 6, for his contour drawing; Oct. 17-21 featured another 6th-grader, Bethany Hutchinson, for symmetrical design; Oct. 24-28 was Alicia Coolidge, Grade 4, for her three-dimensional drawing in perspective.

I have activities from all classes this week. The Kindergarten class invited the 1st-graders for a Halloween snack. Both classes worked together to spread out cheese-whiz on rice cakes and decorated them with raisins.

The 1st-graders have carved a Jack-o'-lantern. They had their own Halloween parade and toured the 1st school showing off their costumes.

On Thursday, Nov. 3, Bruce the Moose will visit Grades K-2 with his exciting program on dental health.

Pat, Verban's 2nd-graders are doing all sorts of exciting things. The student of the week is Jamie Braden, and his friend, Tim, is his grandfather. Mrs. Young, our local postmistress, is coming into class to visit. Mrs. Young started the class to visit the post office. The 2nd-graders had two field trips this week. In addition to the post office, they also visited Stephens Memorial Hospital. This is scheduled annually for the 2nd-graders as part of our health program. It also fits in nicely with the social studies program and learning about the community.

The 2nd-graders are studying map skills in social studies, working on the land and water features of "Our Reading and Research" section in math. They are also working on an activity which takes place every Friday, when the curriculum, the spotlight is turned on and they take center stage. They are currently sharing their creative stories, but will expand into other theatrical productions as the year progresses.

The 4th-graders are nearing the end of their Maine studies. They are currently learning about Aroostook County and from there will continue on to the coast of Maine. They are enjoying being read to daily and the current story is "Ben and Me." This story teaches a bit of history in an entertaining fashion. Did you know Ben Franklin had the help of a mouse with several of his inventions? All of the teachers at our school do read to the children for approximately 20 minutes daily. Literature that students might not pick up on their own is often chosen. Sometimes students recommend a favorite book. Sometimes a good story can be tied in with social studies or science. We all read for a variety of reasons, but mainly to encourage students to read for pleasure, as well as knowledge.

The 5th-graders are getting ready to adopt a whale. This project is offered through the New England Aquarium of Boston. We will receive pictures, information and updates on the sightings and lifestyles of our whale. We will also be visiting the New England Aquarium in the spring.

The 6th-graders had an interesting trip to Portland City Hall last week. Their concert was scheduled the same day that Vice-President Bush was speaking from the front steps. The students were ushered in the back and did not see Mr. Bush. However they did get to see Portland's mounted police and many secret service men. They saw, first hand, many of the security measures taken to protect presidential candidates.

This has been National Drug Free America week. A group of students from the high school, along with the school nurse, are scheduled to visit the 6th-grade to talk to the class about making choices. This is done in connection with our health program and our drug and alcohol abuse prevention program.

In science the 6th-graders are studying the planets. They have learned the planets in order and are working on individual projects.

Mr. George Gibbs visited the 6th-grade class last week for a science activity about trees. He presented some information, then asked all the children to form a human tree. He finished up the morning with a tour around the school grounds, identifying and learning about our own trees. We were surprised to learn that alders were used long ago to make gun powder. Mr. Gibbs taught us that there is more than one way to tell the age of a tree and we figured out the age of a tall pine tree in our back yard.

Financial services firm re-locates to new mall

A.C. Financial Services has moved its location to the Mountain View Mall, on Lower Main Street, in Bethel. The firm had been operating in West Bethel for the past two years.

Al and Roxanne Carson, who run the company, said the renovating of the Mountain View Mall opened an excellent opportunity for relocating their business to the downtown business district, with the convenience of a Main Street location. Other tenants at the mall are Cisco & Poncho's Restaurant, Port Sports, and the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce.

Last month marked the start of A.C. Financial Services' third year in operation. The owners pledge that their commitment to personalized, one-to-one service will continue.

The various services offered by the company are bookkeeping, tax preparation, payroll services and financial management advice.

Alder River Grange considers disbanding

Alder River Grange will hold a meeting on Nov. 7 at 7:30 p.m. to discuss closing Alder River Grange or merging with another Grange. All Alder River Grange members must be present for this meeting as Mr. and Mrs. Bisbee will be there to offer help in this difficult process. It is said that East Bethel residents will no longer have use of the hall if the charter is turned back in.

grounds, identifying and learning about our own trees. We were surprised to learn that alders were used long ago to make gun powder. Mr. Gibbs taught us that there is more than one way to tell the age of a tree and we figured out the age of a tall pine tree in our back yard.

Once again the Mahosue Arts Council was able to present a wonderful concert for all the students in Grades 1-5 at a special assembly. Walt Michael and Company delighted the children with their music. They played a great variety, including folk, country, bluegrass and jazz.

Many children are currently involved in a "Partners in Excellence" program. World Book Company is sponsoring an arrangement that is helping children earn encyclopedias and Child Craft books for their classrooms. (Children are reading books of their choice to earn credit towards the encyclopedias. This program runs through Dec. 2.

The third annual EBS/CPS Craft Fair will be held this coming Saturday, Nov. 5, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., in the Telstar auditorium. There will be many crafts, food and school items for sale. People have worked very hard to make this event a success. Proceeds from the sale will go towards field trips and other special events for children, as well as classroom and library materials. Hope there is a good turnout for this event. The week of Nov. 14 is American Education Week. On Wednesday, Nov. 16, there will be a special presentation for the entire community at 7 p.m. in the Telstar auditorium. It is a one-man show entitled "I am a teacher," acted and written by David Marquis. This show has received national acclaim for the quality of the performance.

Mrs. Ford's 2nd-graders recently visited the Bethel Fire Station. Their guide was Firefighter Warren Corliss. They viewed the trucks and learned about special equipment. The class is now involved in making a Fire Safety Report.

Mrs. Newcomb's Grade 5 social studies classes have been making models in their class studies. Student Crystal Ryerson reports, "They made models of the earth and one model of Maine. There are lots of political maps but they are all different in their own way. Please stop out in the hall and look at some of our wonderful projects."

Mrs. Merrill's 3rd-grade class has started the "Math Facts Contest" to help students learn the 200 basic addition/subtraction facts. The contest has five levels, each requiring students to answer facts on a timed test with 100 percent accuracy two times, before "graduating" to a new level.

All Grade 3 students have been studying a unit on the environment this fall. They had the opportunity to hike in Gratton Notch with Forest Ranger Mark Wright for a memorable experience at the height of fall foliage.

Mrs. Merrill's 3rd-grade class also went on a field trip to Cracker Pond to further their science studies. Ranger Rick McVey educated the children on what the U.S. Forest Service does to help protect the forest environment. Children are writing reports about this trip.

Fourth Grade teacher, Mr. Hoy, and Grade 5 teacher, Mrs. Wheeler, recently attended the National Science Convention, in Portland. They were able to view many displays, which led to leads on buying inexpensive equipment for classrooms. Both teachers also had the opportunity to collaborate on ideas for their unit on animals, besides strengthening curriculums in science studies.

Students and teachers recognized America's Drug Free Week with a Red Ribbon day. The red ribbon was worn by all and gave the message that there is a choice to be drug free. Chapter One teacher, Ms. Germaine, had the information from a grassroots group called "National Federation of Parents for drug free use."

ANDI COLNES and BARRY GOODMAN, of Bethel, last Monday evening described (and showed slides of) their 21-year bike trip around the world. While they did occasionally have to take more modern forms of transportation, they also managed to pedal 22,300 miles during the odyssey, which covered live continents and 26 countries—including Norway, Scotland, Yugoslavia, Israel, Egypt, Pakistan, India, Tibet, Hong Kong, China, Japan, Indonesia, Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand and the U.S. Their lecture was sponsored by the Bethel Outing Club and was held at the Moses Mason House.

Rather a nice, but cool, morning as I sit down to write. At least it isn't raining or snowing and the sun is shining at the moment. Not as pretty out as a few weeks ago, but it is to be expected. Mother Nature can't be changed no matter how badly we would like that very thing to happen for our convenience. Life has its ups and downs and so does the weather.

It has been busy around here since Lawrence and Grace got home as they have been working to get wood cut, split and into the cellar as fast as possible. It is quite a job, but they were lucky, as Alvin had gotten the wood here and their relative pitched in to help, so at least the wood is cut and split. Now the tedious task of getting it under cover and piled up is the matter of the moment.

We still have purple cauliflower in the garden and had one for lunch yesterday. They seem to keep well for a long time, which is good as there are still some that aren't ready as yet but will be soon. With the weather below 32 one would think they might freeze, but they haven't as yet so keep hoping. It does seem good to have the freezer full to help us out during the winter months. The food is better than that gotten from the store even if it does take lots of time to do it all.

Yesterday just wasn't the day for me or my daughter. She came to Norway expecting to get her car that was at a garage and found they had found still more trouble than anticipated. It is like my brake job that I had done a month ago and it let go on me again. I supposed it had been fixed real good—but not in the least. It was just lucky they didn't let go with me when I had my granddaughters with me. It has cost me a small fortune to get them repaired, and it should have all been done at the first time of being in the garage but sure wasn't. It doesn't make one's faith in folks very good at all.

Hospitals are a good deal the same, at times. I have stayed in them at times and have to take sputum cultures to have them tested. The doctor in North Bridgton found that I have it and sent me to have a culture done on it a week ago last Tuesday. I was in Lewiston at the time and my daughter took time off from work to bring me to Norway to get the culture to the hospital. I didn't have a cup so I boiled a jar and cover for over five minutes to be sure it was sterile. The doctor got the results of the gran stain which showed I was full of infection but never got the results of what grew from the mucus culture. My advice to anyone going to a doctor in the Harrison, Bridgton area is to take cultures, or anything, to the Bridgton Hospital where the results will be gotten to your doctor. I can state another instance where, as far as I know, my daughter has never gotten the results of a urine test taken to Stephens for her small daughter. That's not a very good recommendation for getting results to what one needs to know. I had always had faith in the hospital here in Norway till lately, but these episodes don't make my faith in them so good any more. I had to go to Bridgton and have the same tests done and, hopefully, find out what they found.

We had company on Sunday evening. Laura Hutchins, from East Andover, and three of her grandchildren called for a short visit. They hadn't had supper but Laura had brought things for sandwiches and I supplied other things to give all a good supper.

Oh yes, Peggy and Russell went to Locke Mills to the dance on Saturday night. Some were dressed for Halloween and had a good time.

West Paris Grange will be having a meeting on Nov. 3 with a 6:30 supper. There will be a dance at the Grange Hall on Nov. 5. Come and enjoy.

The 4-H Club held a meeting at the Wormell home on High Street and officers were elected for the coming year. This meeting was held on Oct. 18 and here are the names of the new officers: president, Stacey Dean; vice-president, Alan Lovejoy; secretary, Justin Wormell; treasurer, Josh Walton; flag bearers, Darcey Robertson and Joel Martino; reporter, Alicia Coolidge.

Mary and Marcia Baxter called on Helena Bartlett at the Bethel House recently.

Mary Lovejoy would like to give thanks to everyone who made the food and flea

NEWS FROM

Andover Elementary School

Betsy White, Rex Thurston and John Foster welcomed the other SAD #44 school board members to Andover this last Monday. The attractiveness of the building (thanks Art Whitten) and the colorful displays of student projects made it very evident that a great deal of learning takes place in our school every day—and we're proud of it.

Peggy Madigan, APT secretary, and Vickie Meisner, Grade 2 teacher, will be Andover's parent and teacher representatives to a new committee authorized by the board to seek accommodation of issues surrounding the elementary instructional schedule. John Foster is one of two board members serving on this committee and I am also included as principal.

Teachers used their last Wednesday afternoon to plan the year's calendar events. Some of the upcoming events are: open house/book fair, Christmas dinner, Christmas concert, cultural events, and social studies fair, only to name a few. We need people to help with all activities and trips. Please stop in and we'll find a way to employ your talents.

A substantial problem: We are desperate for substitute teachers throughout the district. If you, or someone you know, loves children and wants to help out now and then, please call and get on our substitute list.

Take such a success on Oct. 15. All the help was greatly appreciated and the Grange got a goodly amount from having the sale. That is what it was for, but she also told me that everyone seemed to have a wonderful time and there were more people there than at most of the sales. That is the way to help the community as well as yourselves. I just wish I had had enough things to have had a table also. However, the news that all had a good time and did well really makes the sale important.

Take care one and all and have a good Halloween as well as a safe one.
